Rules of Play

Set Up:

At the beginning of the game, face the role cards down and shuffle them. Each player will randomly take one of the cards. Place 5 bully action cards in the center of all the players—this pile of cards will represent the metaphorical "bully monster." Shuffle the remaining action cards and deal three cards to each player.

Objective:

Each player assumes one of two roles: Friend or Bully. Your role is known only to yourself and is a mystery to everyone else.

1. Friend's Objective – A friend can win in two ways. Either the friends need to identify and vote out all of the bullies, or the friends destroy the bully monster by taking cards out from the center pile (explained more in-depth later).
2. Bully's Objective – A bully wins by keeping the bully monster alive until the end of the game and by not getting voted out by the friends.

Rules:

- Each player will take turns playing one of their three cards. When you play a card, you play it face up so that everyone can see and read off the description.
 - Friend Card – Remove a bully card from the monster and explain how you would stand up against that case of bullying. After, move both of these cards into the discard pile.
 - Bully Card – Add it to the center pile to "grow" the bully monster.
 - Special Card –
 - Peek at someone's hand – choose any player and look at all three of their cards.
 - Switch with someone's hand – choose any player to swap hands with.
 - Force a vote – everyone must vote immediately.
- At the end of the turn, you draw another card so that you always have three in your hand.
- After one cycle where everyone has played their turn, discuss who you think the bully is.
- The game ends when the cards run out.
 - If the bully monster is still alive, everyone votes a final time in an attempt to vote out the bullies.
- Voting – Take up to 3 minutes to discuss who you think the bully is; use the hourglass to keep time. At the end of the time, everyone immediately points to who they think the bully is. Majority rules and the voted person reveals their card.
 - If the voting is initiated from a special card, the game continues with the voted person removed from the game
 - If the voting is initiated at the end of the game, keep voting until all bullies are voted out or one friend is voted out. If all bullies are voted out, the friends win. If a friend is voted out, the bullies win.
