Direction 1: Romance / Social Connection

The Htar Thin Zar

In this version, playing as the train conductor, the player will focus on saving the station by helping love bloom across the village. By talking to NPCs, they will solve relationship conflicts ranging from platonic to romantic by doing quests like delivering letters before the train leaves. As more relationships become repaired or formed, the village becomes famous online as a place where love comes true, attracting more visitors. This focuses on crafting social emotional bonds.

Direction 2: Explore/ Walking Sim

In this version, playing as the train conductor, the player will focus on saving the station by exploring the village's surrounding forests, lake, the city, and abandoned playground. By bringing tools like old binoculars, field notebooks, or cameras, they can discover rare birds, wildlife, and old local stories tied to the village's old prosperous past. As more discoveries are shared with villagers and passengers, the village becomes known as a peaceful nature destination, attracting birdwatchers, hikers, and travelers who help keep the train line alive. This focuses on exploring.

Direction 3: Narrative / Walking Sim

In this version, playing as the train conductor, the player will focus on uncovering each of the NPCs' past, discovering what the village was like in its glorious past. Through this, new areas become unlocked with each day, and the player's choice of interactions will shape what areas are unlocked. This focuses on making the goal of keeping the station alive as more of an emotional connection for the player rather than a business goal.
